WASHINGTON MUSEUM

AND SPECULUM OF NATURE AND ART,

NO. 96 E. BALTIMORE-STREET, NEAR SOUTH-ST.

John P. Paul & Co.

PROPRIETORS.

This Museum which has just been opened for the reception of visitors, and fitted up in a neat and handsome style, (in those large and airy rooms above named) contain a numerous, rare, and valuable collection of

NATURAL HISTORY,

viz: Quadrupeds, Birds, Snakes, Insects, Shells, Minerals, Fossils, &c. And, a fine specimen of the stupendous from Africa, which measures 22 feet in length, and 2 feet round the girth. Also,

BOA-CONSTRUCTOR

An extensive collection of Natural and Artificial Curiosities from almost every part of the world.

The Museum contains a good collection of PAINTINGS, from old and modern Artists.

With a view to render the Establishment complete, and of gratifying all, the proprietors have fitted one large room of

WAX FIGURES,

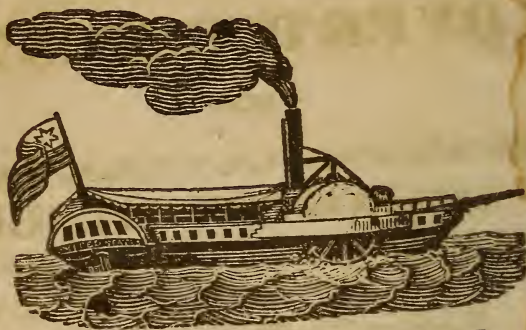

Consisting of various Groupes and Likenesses of distinguished Individuals, in all about seventy figures.

In addition to the above, the proprietors have procured a first rate ELECTRIFYING MACHINE for the accommodation of visitors, (either for medical use or amusement.) Also, a PROFILE MACHINE, made on the latest and best principle, so that visitors can have the use of the Electrifying Machine, and receive a correct Profile Likeness, without any extra charge.

 Admittance 25 Cents—Children half price.

N. B. Subjects of Natural History put up in a superior manner, with dispatch, on moderate terms, and warranted to stand all climates.

TO THE PUBLIC.

AFTER the arduous exercises of visiting all the householders and persons in business, individually, in the city; arranging their names alphabetically, and incurring the expense of paper, printing, engraving, and binding, we present the public with another "BALTIMORE DIRECTOR."

The publisher has been prompted to the present publication by an ambition to render the work as perfect as possible, and to effect this, practice alone can qualify. He is the only individual who ever persevered in publishing more than one edition of the work, and notwithstanding he has met with many discouragements, from those who seem to make it their business to condemn every production but their own, from others whose ungentlemanly behaviour cannot fail to wound the feelings of those who may enquire for the necessary information of their name or occupation, &c. however discreetly addressed, as well as the small encouragement by the sale of former editions; he has accomplished the 4th edition, and he flatters himself that he has acquired such a facility in the mode of getting out this work as will enable him to make such improvements in every succeeding edition as will render the work desirable to every man of business, and an object for himself to continue.

No reflecting individual will expect to find a work of this character exempt from errors. Of a population of from 10,000 to 15,000 householders, what matter of astonishment would the omission of more than 100 names be? Even if this were, but it is not, the case: When it is considered, that in numerous instances we have to depend on the vague information given us by servants in the absence of the householder, and the many who cannot spell their own names, and others who take us for collectors and will either refuse their names or give wrong names, what wonder if many names are not spelt correctly, (and there is no rule for spelling persons' names) and if a name is not spelt correctly when they are arranged alphabetically, the name thus erroneously spelt will be put in the wrong place, where a reader will not think of looking for it, and will conclude when he does not find it in its proper place, that it is not in the book; and the name of a public man is as liable to be omitted as that of an obscure one; when it is known that many names pronounced alike, are spelt quite differently, viz: Abot or Abbott, Aiken or Aitkin, Bayly, Bailey, Bear, Baer, Bauer, Cain, Kain, Carr, Kerr, Dav^{ies}, Davies, Eagleston, Eggleston, Foster, Forster, German, Jerman, Hewes, Hughes. Isler, Iler, Johnson, Johnston, Cane, Cain, Lawrence, Laurence, Matchett, Machet, Neal, Neil, O'Laughlin, O'Laughlen, Pearce, Pierce, Qusick, Quisick, Riley, Reilly, Sanders, Saunders, Thompson, Tomsen, Uhler, Euler, Varden, Virden, Wulff, Wolf, Yeates, Yates, Ziegler, Sigler, X being the only letter that does not furnish names pronounced alike and spelt differently; in fact, almost every name used, will admit of a difference in Orthography.

Considering the magnitude of the undertaking, and placing all these considerations in view, who but will say, it is astonishing the work is so complete! And how silly or malignant it is to bore us with the vulgar objections common to such people.

We return thanks to many liberal patrons for their encouragement of the present edition, by their names as subscribers. We take pleasure in using our best efforts to satisfy honourable, reasonable men, who do not expect impossibilities, who are disposed to give credit when it is due, and justly pay the value for what they receive. Complaints and objections have, however, been mostly made by persons whom the work has not cost one cent.

By each subscriber marking such corrections as he may see necessary on the blank leaves inserted in the latter end of the work for that purpose, which will be delivered gratis to each subscriber in a supplement, on 1st August, we think no just cause of complaint can exist.

BALTIMORE.

It was near one hundred years after the landing of the first colonists in Maryland, and just a hundred years ago, that the settlers on the Patapsco river applied for a law to erect a town at the head of the N. W. Branch of that river, which, in honour of the Calvert family, they named after the town of Baltimore in Ireland, from whence their title to the peerage of that kingdom was derived, and where they held considerable estates, though born and generally resident in England.

Baltimore has a harbour which admits of frigates and merchant ships of the largest class, and is secure in all weathers, being distant about 200 miles from sea and not much more from the Ohio river; near the temperate latitude of 39 North, and centre of the state and country; surrounded by land and water, furnishing every means of subsistence, enterprize and enjoyment required by an extensive and enlightened population.

The first grounds laid out for the town, of sixty acres only, was part of a tract called Cole's Harbour, and purchased in 1729 of Mr. Carroll, the father of the signer of the Declaration of Independence, of the same name, at the moderate price of $5 33 per acre, by Messrs. Tolley, Hamilton, Buckner, Walker, Gist, Buchanan and Hammond, commissioners named in the law.

There were as many lots as acres, though not exactly regular in size or form, to be taken at the rate of the purchase money, and only three streets, which were those called Baltimore, running from east to west, and Calvert and Charles, crossing the first at right angles; and the town was extended from time to time, nearly equal in every direction, from the intersection of Baltimore and Calvert-streets.

The Parish Church of St. Paul, in Patapsco Neck, was discontinued, and a new one directed to be built in the new town in 1731, and stood very near the site of the present church of that name, having been twice rebuilt.

Next year, a part of the same tract of land, divided on the west, from the former, by the stream called Jones's Falls, was laid out for another town, by the name of Jones's town, which was long called Old Town, but united in 1745, with the first town, by a bridge where Gay-street bridge now is, and by act of Assembly, which also secured to settlers the property in grounds made into the water.

In the year 1751, a subscription was got up for building a market-house, in which is found, besides the names of some of the commissioners, those of Messrs. Sheredine, Harrisson, Philpot, Lyon, Chase, Gay, Lawson, Rogers, Sleigh, Randall and Lux, and the market first erected was at the north-west corner of Baltimore and Gay-streets. About the same time a public lottery was drawn to defray the cost of a wharf at the south end of Calvert-street, near which was erected a tobacco inspection house. In 1763, Fell's Point on the east of the first addition and the intermediate grounds were added to the town, and it was extended on the west and south of the first town, by the Messrs. Howards in 1765 and 1782. In 1768, the justices of the county were authorised to transfer the seat of justice from Joppa, on Gunpowder river, to the town, and until the first court-house was erected, where the Baltimore Monument now stands, the courts met over the market, where also town meetings and assemblies were held. The first fire company, called the Mechanical Company, was formed the next year.

Great fears were excited in the town by the encroachment of the Indians in the war of 1756, when a number of French neutrals arrived from Nova Scotia, (who principally settled towards the south end of Charles and Light-streets, called French town, now intersected by the opening of Lombard-street,) and the inhabitants, become about 5000 in number, were frequently threatened, but not attacked by the British, in the war of independence. During that war, the citizens of Baltimore exhibited their patriotism not only in forming companies of horse and foot, who were in active duty, but in contributing to relieve those who were reduced from want of trade; but, notwithstanding, the population increased rapidly, and before the peace, a custom-house was opened; upon which event the paving and lighting streets commenced. Refugees from St. Domingo and emigrants from Europe, had so multiplied the wants of a local government, that the city was incorporated in 1796.

The first Bank of the United States opened a branch in this city, in 1792, but the State had incorporated a company in 1790, by the name of the Bank of Maryland.

The Falls water was brought in pipes through the city, and the Turnpike roads were authorised by law in 1804, and the Maryland Penitentiary in 1807.

The war of 1812 was more afflictive on Baltimore, in its consequences, than the former; but though the British interrupted the trade, they were unable to reduce the fort, which was partly made in the war of 1776, and completed in 1796, and on the return of peace, when the number of inhabitants amounted to about 60,000, including the precincts then added, a court of criminal jurisdiction was established, separate from the county, and the present Exchange building was erected, the population, as it is now supposed being near 80,000.

More particulars would not be expected in a work of this kind, which, however, may be found at the end of it, in the Annals of Baltimore, by Mr. Griffith, and other appropriate works.
